Duungidjau Body Parts

Duungidjau is the name of one of the languages spoken in the Upper Brisbane River Catchment, extending from Caboolture to Moore. There are shared words between Duungidjau and neighbouring languages of Kabi Kabi to the East and Wakka Wakka to the West and North.

Much of what we know about Duungidjau has been provided by Uncle Willie McKenzie, also known as Gaiarbau. L P Winterbotham interviewed Gaiarbau in the 1950's and his manuscript provided valuable cultural knowledge on Duungidjau and neighbouring groups in the region.

As Aboriginal languages were oral-based, the spelling of Duungidjau and Duungidjau language may differ in historical document and other sources; for example Duungidjau has also been spelt djunggidjau, dungidau, dungidjau and dunggija.

The following list identifies parts of the body and their suggested pronunciation.

Note: Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander languages were oral-based; there may be several variations in spelling and pronunciation. The following list should be seen as a guide - check with local language speakers as to the preferred local pronunciation.
